The "Islington Commission" was a Royal Commission formed to recommend reforms in the Public Service of British India with Lord Islington as its chairman. The commission was guided by three principal considerations: firstly, to maintain high standards of civil administration in British India; secondly, to safeguard the paramount interest of British rule; and thirdly, to satisfy the reasonable aspirations of Indians and promote friendly relations between Indians and Europeans for better governance. The commission completed its report in 1915, but owing to the outbreak of the First World War, the report was not published until 1917.

He was an author and his titles include;

The problem of the Hour; a lecture on the recruiting of Anglo-Indian and Eurasian regiments . 1885.

The contagious diseases' acts in India: their complete failure proved from authentic returns . 1895.

Critical Analysis of Calcutta Temperance. Federations statement on the liquor problem. 1908.
