All through this week, I've had a tune running through my mind. Some of you may have even heard me humming it. It's the Beatles song: "When I'm sixty-four", which is exactly relevant to my birthday during the past week. I suppose when Lennon and McCartney wrote it as young men barely into their twenties, the age of 64 must have seemed a very long time away, as I'm sure it did to me. Now I'm there, and it doesn't seem very old at all.

When I became Minister of this church, the future seemed to stretch out without limit, but now nine years have passed and we're all that much older. In that time I've learned a lot through experience and see things from quite a different perspective. But, as always when I think about the future, I do feel that I'm sailing into uncharted waters. We can gain a lot of insight from the past, but when it comes down to it the future is entirely in God's hands – so there's no change there. As we approach this together, I want to ask you again to pray for me and the Deacons and for the Church members' meeting on Thursday June 23rd, when we will be seeking God's will in a number of areas affecting the life of the church and our witness here in Dewsbury. So it's not a tragedy to grow older – in many ways it provides us with new opportunities. Let's seek, whatever age we are and however long we've served, to take them for God.

Take care,

Brian

Mini Walk sponsor money now needs to be paid in as soon as possible.

Manor Street Car Park There was a super turnout when three tonnes of slate was spread on the garden area. Thank you to all who turned up and helped.

Knareborough Fun Day After a miserable, dribbly, rainy start some stayed a while, sitting in cars. Some went for a delightful walk. Most then had lunch. Some decided to go home and call it a day. Others stuck it out and were eventually rewarded by a break in the weather. They got to smash some balls around the tennis court and a hardy few managed to light their barbecues around five-ish and had a super end to the day. A good time was had by all.

The Plant Stall which has been in church this week still has some plants left which are now on view in the arcade for half price.
