

15 Go Wild In Cornwall

A short story by Gary Gremo!

Once upon a time there was this great girl's rugby team from Gravesend that had achieved just about everything that a girl's club team could.

One day little round coach number one said to the little round coach number two "I know something we haven't done ~ lets have a Gremlin rugby tour".

Little round coach number two looked aghast. Had he not suggested the very same idea a little while ago only to be poo poed by little round coach number one? Dumfounded, little round coach number two went to find little round coach number three.

"Guess what" said little round coach number two "little round coach number one has only gone and suggested that we take the ugly sisters off on a rugby tour!"

"Brilliant" said little round coach number three "and I know just where we can go".

And so the scene is set

If we can get enough support, Gravesend RFC's very own Gremlins are off to tour the West Country in Easter 2008.

At this early stage all you've got to do is sit back and think about whether you want to go or not. There is a huge "but" due to child protection issues and for the sanity of the coaches, if you want to go, each player will have to take a parent or guardian with them. Sorry girls ~ no exception's or "borrowed" parents.

The deal is that we'll go down by coach on a Friday afternoon, probably staying at a holiday caravan site and come home on a Monday. Obviously we'll make it over the school Easter break.

We've no idea of costs yet but it's probably about going to be about £125 per person, although we will be doing some fund raising between times to ease the pain.

Over to you Gremo's ~ all we need is a provisional yes, no or maybe.
